```
@gt4py.cartesian.gtscript.stencil(backend="...") def laplacian(
         in phi: gt4py.cartesian.gtscript.Field[float], out lap: gt4py.cartesian.gtscript.Field[float]
     ) -> None:
         with computation(PARALLEL), interval(...):
             out_lap[0, 0, 0] = -4.0 \times in_phi[0, 0, 0] \setminus
                  + in phi[-1, 0, 0] + in_phi[1, 0, 0] \setminus
                  + in_phi[0, -1, 0] + in_phi[0, 1, 0]
                                     Frontend
                                GTIR
                                     Optimizations
                                IIR
                  GridTools
                              GridTools
                                           DaCe
                                                       DaCe
                                                                Backends
       NumPy
                    (CPU)
                               (GPU)
                                            (CPU)
                                                       (GPU)
                                                            Code generation
      Vectorized
                  Optimized
                              Optimized
                                         Optimized
                                                     Optimized
       Pvthon
                             C++/CUDA
                                                     C++/CUDA
                    C++
                                            C++ Bindings
laplacian(phi, lap, origin=(1, 1, 0), domain=(nx-2, ny-2, nz))
```